WRITING FOR IMPACT: TIPS FOR IMPROVING WRITING SKILLS

Good writing is clear thinking made visible. ~Bierce

Audience

- If your goal is to get a message to the reader, then your knowledge of the reader is a key to your success. Clearly identify your audience: age, gender, what they know about the subject, what they don’t know about the subject, etc.
- Is the reader familiar with Cooperative Extension?
- Is the reader interested in the topic?
- What does the reader want to know?
- Audience Similarities:
  - Are interested in results
  - Want brief, understandable information
  - Competition for their attention
  - Are not specialists or scientists
  - Have some control over programs
- Keep your audience in mind as you write.

Words

- Less is more: use the right word, not the most; simple familiar words are best; avoid jargon and unfamiliar words.
- Words are your tools – use the appropriate tool for the task.
- Words don’t think for you. They only convey your thoughts.
- If the idea is not clear in your mind, the words won’t clear it up.
- When you have trouble putting something into words, stop trying to write and start trying to think.
- Use the short word: is – not exists
- Use the simple word: ate – not consumed
- Use the personal word: you – not one
- Use the specific word: 110°F – not quite hot
- Use the colorful word: big as a basketball – not very large
- Use the active word: It bit me – not I was bitten by it
- Use the familiar word: beekeeping – not apiculture

Numbers

- Make statistics easy to understand. Say “one out of eight” instead of 12 ½ percent. Use analogies such as, “During the five minutes it takes for you to read this story, 10 people will be diagnosed with cancer.” Too many statistics can overwhelm the reader.
• In text, spell out numbers below 10 and use figures i.e., 18, to express numbers of 10 or more.
• In groups of two or more numbers, treat the sentence as a unit:
  • He had two suits.
  • He had 100 ties.
  • He had 100 ties, 12 shirts, and 2 suits.
  • One or two more won’t matter.
• Spell out numbers at the beginning of a sentence: Fifty-three people attended.
Exceptions are symbols such as, 4-H.

Simplify
• Use the short word
• Use short sentences, the more words the harder it is to follow.
• Be as brief as possible
• Eliminate excess evidence and unnecessary examples. Usually one fact or example will support your point.
• Edit, then edit, then edit again. Be ruthless with your copy.
• Start well. The first one or two sentences capture the reader’s attention.
• Be conversational. Convey your message with common everyday words. Use contractions. We use them when speaking.
• Use personal words. “I”, “you” and “we” involve the readers.
